

Anna Katarzyna Wiech

Anna Katarzyna Wiech is Head of Environmental Monitoring Department at Chief Inspectorate of Environmental Protection (GIOS) which is supervised by the Minister of Climate and Environment in Poland. She is responsible for managing the department that carries out environmental monitoring and provides environmental assessments at the regional and country level under State Environmental Monitoring Strategic Programme in the areas of air quality, inland and ground water, Baltic Sea, acoustic climate, electromagnetic field, habitats, animal and plant species, ionising and non-ionising radiation and soil.

She is an M.A. in English Philology, an M.A. in American Business Culture (Environmental Management Systems) at the University of Warsaw and holds a diploma of postgraduate studies in Environmental Protection at the University of Warsaw. She took up duties at GIOS Monitoring Division in 2001 and has worked as air quality projects' coordinator and Polish EIONET coordinator under NFP PL, later since 2007 as Deputy Head of Environmental Monitoring Department and since 2015 as its Head.