

Pierluigi Cocco

Department of Public Health
Occupational Health Section
University of Cagliari
Asse Didattico - Policlinico Universitario
09042 Monserrato (Cagliari), Italy
<http://pacs.unica.it/>

Background: Occupational Medicine and Epidemiology

Designation: Life & health science

Specialist Competencies

- Environmental and occupational exposures
- Occupational Health
- Occupational Cancer Epidemiology
- Environmental Epidemiology
- Industrial Toxicology

Experience and professional memberships

Author of 297 publications, including 140 in international peer-reviewed journals. Referee for numerous scientific journals including American Journal of Epidemiology, Blood, Cancer Epidemiology Biomarkers and Prevention, Environmental Health Perspectives, Gastroenterology, International Journal of Epidemiology, Occupational and Environmental Medicine, and The Lancet. Research interests in the field of Occupational Cancer Epidemiology, Environmental Epidemiology, Industrial Toxicology, and Occupational Health. Principal investigator in various research projects and member of the steering committee of the multicentre case-control study on the etiology of non Hodgkin's lymphoma (EPILYMPH-Europe, coordinated by the International Agency for research on Cancer) and of the childhood leukemia and neuroblastoma (SETIL) study, a nation-wide multicentre case-control study coordinated by the Cancer Epidemiology Unit, Turin, Italy, in relation to environmental and occupational exposures. Principal investigator of the mortality follow up study of workers exposed to DDT during the antimalarial campaign in Sardinia, Italy. Local principal investigator in the study of gene polymorphisms and biomarkers of low level exposure to benzene. National coordinator of the Multicentre Italian study on gene-environment interaction in lymphoma aetiology. Member of the Interlymph Consortium, a world wide network of lymphoma studies promoted by the U.S. National Cancer Institute.

- Member of ICOH (International Commission on Occupational Health).
- Committee member of the ICOH Scientific Committee on Epidemiology and the ICOH Scientific Committee on Agricultural Health
- Member of the Italian Society of Occupational Medicine and Industrial Hygiene.
- Member of the Italian Association of Epidemiology
- Member of the Association of International Union Against Cancer (UICC) fellows
- Member of the International Society for Environmental Epidemiology